One of a kind Humanity is message of Romulus poet

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Humanity is Edward Kind's favorite subject.

The Romulus poet, a professional "people watcher," fills his verse with descriptions of man and the current events that concern him. His poems have been displayed in numerous local newspapers including The Detroit News, The Trenton Times, The Huron News and The Associated Newspapers. Kind has also published two books on his own.

"Every time I write a poem it has a message," he said. "Something to awaken the mind."

Inspiration comes sporadically for Kind.

"Usually it's something that is disturbing me a few days, an idea I feel I must capture. It usually has to do with a current event or philosophical mood pertaining to mankind," he said.

Kind does most of his writing in a study crammed with books and an assortment of portraits, which include John Wayne and Abraham Lincoln.

Because the collection of books is beginning to crowd him from the room, Kind has begun construction on a library behind his house. He refers to it as a lyceum, the Greek word for library. When completed, the lyceum will contain more than 1,000 books for borrowing or purchasing. It will also be a meeting site for study groups, Kind hopes. A local historian, Sam Gill, will supply a large portion of the books for this venture.

Kind, 63, is a slight man with large, thoughtful eyes. He creates the traditional image of a poet. However, it has only been in the last 10 years that he seriously considered himself a writer. Previous occupations include lab technician and crane operator.

Kind refers to himself as "self-taught."

As a crane operator, Kind often had 10-minute blocks of time to kill as he screened sand through a hopper. He usually spent that time reading and writing poetry.

When an editor from a local newspaper read one of his poems and liked it, Kind was encouraged to pursue his interest. His poem about American hostages in Iran was the first piece to appear in the Poet's Corner of The Detroit News, Kind said.

When asked about the poets he most admires, Kind listed Edgar Guest, Robert Frost and William Shakespeare.

Explosion is investigated

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

City and state officials continue to investigate a chemical explosion that took place in Romulus Friday night resulting in eight minor injuries.

The explosion, reportedly the result of two chemicals accidentally mixed together, occurred near ChemCentral on Huron River Drive near Northline. Authorities arrived on the scene at 7:30 p.m. and remained until 3:20 a.m. Saturday.

A Peerless Transport Company tanker, which contained three compartments, was transporting chemicals from Dow Chemical to a Detroit company. In Detroit, the truck driver inadvertently transferred a chemical into the wrong chamber, mixing the substances, according to Margaret LeDuc, director of emergency preparedness for Romulus.

Unaware of his error, the driver then drove to ChemCentral, a chemical distribution firm. While beside ChemCentral, the chemicals reportedly reacted to the mix, heated and then exploded, LeDuc said.

No one expected the chemi-als to react that way, she said. The chemicals had been combined approximately two and a half hours at the time of the explosion.

Injuries from the explosion are believed to be the result of fumes. One adult and four children in a passing car reportedly experienced discomfort and a burning sensation in the throat and lungs from the fumes and were transported to Annapolis Hospital, in Wayne. Also affected were a police officer, two bicyclists and a nearby resident who felt the burning in his eyes and on his skin. One person remains hospitalized for observation. The others were treated and released.

Because of a chemical cloud formed shortly after the explosion, police and fire personnel began evacuating residents within a half-mile radius of the explosion site. The cloud quickly dissipated, however, and the alert was cancelled.

Officials from Dow Chemical told Romulus fire officials that the chemicals involved, methylene chloride and diethylamine, will dissipate naturally.

Information sought in grisly assault

A 19-year-old Taylor woman was listed in critical condition Tuesday, four days after she had been soaked with gasoline and set on fire.

She is at the University of Michigan Burn Center, in Ann Arbor.

More than 90 percent of Kristen Grauman's body is covered with third-degree burns.

Grauman was discovered on Inkster Road, south of Eureka, at 12:30 a.m. Saturday. A Romulus resident driving down Inkster saw the woman rolling on the ground attempting to extinguish the flames covering her body. When the rolling failed, Grauman ran to a nearby ditch filled with water and jumped in, the witness told police officials.

After extinguishing the flames, Grauman sat on the side of the road by the ditch crying until help arrived, the witness told police officials.

Grauman was transported to Heritage Hospital, in Taylor, and then transferred to the University of Michigan Burn Center.

Romulus police officials continue to investigate the case. Detectives interviewed relatives and visited the hospital Monday, although they have not been able to interview Grauman. The officials said Tuesday they planned to check on several leads.

Grauman, who celebrated her birthday Friday, lives with her mother and 15-year-old sister. She reportedly was trying to end a three-year cocaine habit and had plans to return to high school.

Anyone with information about this case should call the Romulus Police Department at 941-8400.

City set for celebration

Traditional events are in store for Romulus residents as they celebrate the Fourth of July, including the return of an old favorite.

After a two-year absence, recreation officials are attempting to reinstate the Fourth of July Parade. Tentatively, parade participants are expected to leave city hall at noon, Tuesday.

The parade roster already includes representatives of the Romulus Chamber of Commerce, the Romulus Senior Center, the high school Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps, a local sport organization, a horse-drawn carriage and miniature cars.

Unless a few more participants sign up, however, officials said another year may go by without a parade.

To obtain information about participation, call 942-6852.

Whether the parade is staged or not, numerous other activities are planned for the holiday. Most activities will be staged at Elmer Johnson Park, just off Wick Road.

A community picnic will be staged from 1 to 11 p.m. Goodies such as nachos, hot dogs and non-alcoholic drinks will be available at a concession stand operated by the Romulus Flyers.

From 6 to 9:30 p.m., disc jockey Jerry Gratiot will be on hand to provide some musical entertainment.

In addition, live music from a country- and 1950s-style band will be offered. The performance will be sponsored by the campaign committees for Mayor Beverly McAnally and possible city council candidate, David Atkins.

Additional activities include free games for children, tentatively planned for 3 p.m.

Local improvements studied

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A detailed list of city improvements proposed for the city, including sewer additions and road repairs, was presented to city councilmembers Monday.

The improvements listed are in varying stages of progress—some have already been approved by councilmembers. Although estimated costs were listed for each project, methods of financing have not yet been determined. City officials hope to have this information, along with a time frame for some of the projects, within the next month or two.

Below is a list of projects discussed:

• A sanitation sewer would be installed in the north section of Hannan Road spanning 1,300 feet. The project would cost $1,000. Many of the area residents rely on septic systems.

• A similar project would be initiated on the south side of Hannan spanning from Barth to Pennsylvania. The project would cost $280,000.

• A water main would be installed along Hannan south of Barth. The main would be 19,000 feet.

• A water main on Shook Road, spanning 2,600 feet, would be replaced near Romaine Road. The project would cost $230,000.

• A sanitary sewer expansion would be installed on Wayne Road south of Ronald Road. The project proposal is based upon numerous resident requests and would cost $30,000.

• A chipseal (form of repaving) program would be initiated on numerous streets throughout the city including sections of Merriman, Sterling, Delano, Moore, McBride, Henry Ruff, Grover, Tobine and Vinewood. Total cost is estimated at $55,000.

• In cooperation with the county, road repairs have been approved for sections of several local roads during a four-year period. Expected to be repaired this year are sections of Pennsylvania, Wayne and Ecorse. The cost to the city totals $200,000.

• Sidewalks would be added throughout the city. A section on Wayne Road from Herman to Wick roads is underway now. The project will cost $32,616.

• Improvements to the area planned for the Metro World Centre development site will cost $7 million.

• A sanitation sewer manhole inflow investigation is already underway in two different sections of town including Five Points.

City officials expressed support for the improvement projects.

LOCAL NEWS DIGEST

County committee name change eyed

The Wayne County Committee on Maintenance and Scheduling of the Wayne County Building may have a new name soon, according to county officials.

Members of the committee said they believe the current name does not accurately describe the services conducted by the group. The new proposed name has not been decided.

2 salt domes to be built

Two storage domes for the salt used to melt ice and snow in the winter will be built in Wayne County, according to Wayne County officials.

The weatherproof domes, for stockpiling the salt in the off-season, will be built at New Boston Yard, in New Boston, and Hoover Yard, in Detroit.

County sells Westland site

A Romulus resident has purchased Wayne County property on Middlebelt Road, near Van Born, in Westland. The approximately three-quarters-of-an-acre site was purchased for $25,100 by Lucile Berry.

Berry presented the highest of three bids during a recent surplus-property sale.

Money earned by the county through the sale of surplus lands is deposited in a special county lands account.

Task force raids auto 'chop shop'

Approximately $26,000 worth of automobile parts were confiscated at a Westland storage-locker facility June 22 by officers from the Western Wayne Auto Theft Unit.

Officers with the unit have been investigating the alleged "chop shop" for several weeks, according to First Lt. Sally Miller.

The Western Wayne Auto Theft Unit is a task force supported and funded by several western Wayne County communities—including Westland, Canton Township, Wayne, Belleville, Garden City and Romulus.

In the recent raid, police officers obtained two search warrants, one for the storage area and a second for a Garden

City home. The Mr. Store-it locker is located on South Merriman Road, north of Van Born, in Westland.

In the rented storage bin, 30 engines and 66 transmissions were found, Miller said.

Contract OK'd for golf study

A $4,000 contract with Bills/Childs Associates has been approved by city officials to conduct a municipal golf course feasibility study.

City officials agreed earlier this year to study the feasibility of a city-owned golf course. The Shady Hollow course on Wayne Road may be displaced by the proposed Metro World Centre development.

Being considered as a possible golf course site is of city-owned land just off Wick Road near Elmer Johnson Park. That same area is also being considered as the site for a new recreation center. There is enough property for both, according to city officials.

1989 millage rate approved

City millages totalling 10.8539 were approved by city councilmembers Monday night for the 1989/90 fiscal year.

The rates break down to 9.1436 mills for operations, 1.1750 mills for sanitation and .5353 mills for the sewer debt.

The budget for the upcoming fiscal year was approved several weeks ago.

Employees are honored

Nine employees of the Romulus school district who will retire this year were honored by members of the board of education Monday.

Honored retirees include: Marjorie Butler, 19-year para-professional; Donald Fawl, 31-year teacher; John Giannetti, 21-year warehouse clerk; Donald McCrary, 32-year teacher; Joan Murray, 15-year custodian; Jean Read, 22-year secretary; Betty Salesky, 11-year secretary; Jordan Washington, 23-year teacher and John White, 26-year teacher.

Future of Beacon building debated

School officials will form a committee to study future uses for the old South Junior High School building on Olive.

The building housed the Beacon Day Treatment Center last school year, but is now empty. The contract with the county for the program was not renewed.

District officials are now concerned with the expense of asbestos removal in the building, replacement of an aged boiler and the need for roof repairs.

Current committee members include representatives from the mayor's office, city council, the school board, the chamber of commerce and Romulus residents. For information about joining, call the superintendent's office at 941-1600.

Board OKs tax levy

Several weeks after approving the summer tax levy, district officials approved a winter levy totalling 24.55 mills.

This levy represents half of the local funds needed to meet district obligations for the 1989/90 budget.

Young girl recuperates

A 5-year-old Romulus girl who was burned when a power line fell on her earlier this month was released from Mott's Children's Hospital, in Ann Arbor, last week.

The girl was injured June 7 when a live power line fell on top of her. She had been playing in front of her home on the 15000 block of Plainway when the incident occurred.

At the hospital, the girl was treated for first-, second- and third-degree burns. She was released June 23.

Detroit Edison officials continue to investigate the incident. Neighbors report the same line fell to the ground last year.

Exchange program needs local host families

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

When participants of the EF Foundation student-exchange program first arrive in the United States, most of their expectations are based upon American television and movies.

Expanding that knowledge and erasing stereotypes is one of the major goals of the exchange program, according to Van Buren Township resident, Doris Engebretsen, regional coordinator.

The EF Foundation is a non-profit organization that coordinates exchanges between high school students in the U.S. and European and South American countries. This year, the program expanded to Australia and the Soviet Union may be added soon, Engebretsen said.

Most of the European students arrive in the U.S. in mid-August and remain until mid-June and Engebretsen has been busily searching for host families throughout the area.

Host parents must be 21 or older. Couples with or without children may participate, as well as single parents.

In order for students to participate in the exchange, they must speak English and have an understanding of American history and geography. Grade requirements vary from country to country.

Therefore host families are usually able to communicate well with the students they house.

"The educational part is very important, but that's not what it's all about. It's the experience of being in the U.S.

and becoming close to a host family," Engebretsen said.

Currently, two students from the program are staying in Engebretsen's home. Richard Novak, of Switzerland, has nearly completed his stay here. Timothy Lauder, of Australia, will remain with Engebretsen until a permanent host family is found for him.

In order to make the exchange pleasant for host families and students, coordinators work to match personalities and interests. Once students are placed, Engebretsen acts as a counselor, keeping in contact in case problems arise.

This is the first year Engebretsen served not only as a coordinator, but as a host parent.

"It's a really good experience...The most important thing is no matter what country they come from, when it all boils down they're all teenagers," she said.

From the students' point of view, visiting the U.S. has been a longtime dream.

"To get to know a new culture after seeing all those American movies...and to learn the language, get to know friends," Novak said.

Actually, Novak admitted, the U.S. is not exactly what he expected. He envisioned everybody eating hamburgers and drinking Pepsi in cities filled with skyscrapers. Of course that does happen in the U.S., he said, but not everywhere.

If Americans are stereotyped, so are those from other countries, Lauder said. He was surprised how many people asked him about the kangaroos from his homeland or the crocodiles he wrestles.

Another challenge for the students is adapting to the language.

"Learning the slang is the most difficult part," Engebretsen said. "The students are taught proper English. We talk a lot more slang in everyday language than we realize."

During their first few months here, Lauder and Novak dealt with unfamiliar words and phrases with the "yes smile." Lauder recalls his first experience in an American restaurant. After ordering, the waitress asked "soup or salad?" Lauder, unsure if he was being offered a "super salad," smiled and said yes.

While adjusting to the language, the students also have to deal with a new school system. In their schools, Lauder and Novak study a different set of subjects each day of the week. For examples, one day is for science; one day is for music.

For Novak, who comes from Zurich, it is the open farmland that seems odd to him. Switzerland is one third the size of Michigan with three times the population, he said. He is used to seeing every usable piece of land occupied.

Although both of the students doubt they will ultimately live in the United States, they do plan to come back for visits.

In the meantime they are enjoying the experience of living in the United States with an American family.

For information about becoming a host parent, call Engebretsen at 461-1376.

City joins in statewide suit for court funding

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

City officials agreed Monday to participate in a lawsuit pitting municipalities that fund courts against the state.

Earlier in the month, city officials were informed of the class action suit and told Romulus would be affected by any court decision unless officials indicated they did not want to participate.

Participants in the lawsuit are seeking reimbursements for court funding along with relief from future financial responsibility. The lawsuit was initiated by several local counties including Newago, Ottawa, Saginaw and Wexford. Kent, Ingham and Van Buren counties joined later.

Defendants in the case include the state, Gov. James Blanchard, the state legislature and Franklin Pinkelman, auditor general for the state.

Plaintiffs claim that under the Michigan Constitution of 1963, the state must finance the operation of all circuit, district, municipal and probate courts.

The funding of legal costs for the suit will be divided among the participating communities based upon population. Initially, Romulus will be responsible for $300.

The decision of city councilmembers to participate was based upon a recommendation from Barry Seifman, legal council for the city.

"A realistic concern is if the city chooses not to participate, a ruling would most likely affect the city anyhow without any input (such as) rental of buildings," Seifman said.

Mayor pleased with Washington meetings

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally met with Washington lawmakers last week to discuss concerns unique to the city.

The meetings were staged as part of a legislative conference hosted by Congressman William Ford (D-Taylor) and John Dingell (D-Dearborn).

McAnally was accompanied by Councilman Jimmie Raspberry and Community Development Director Dennis Oakes.

During the conference, McAnally met with a representative from the Federal Highway Commission and discussed the interchange proposed for I-94 and Vining Road. City officials have spent more than a year planning for the interchange to facilitate the proposed Metro World Centre for the area.

The major challenge now, McAnally said, is moving the interchange application through the Michigan Department of Public Transportation.

Also during the conference, McAnally met with the director of housing to discuss affordable housing for Romulus. McAnally told officials that providing the buildings is not enough; she believes support services are necessary as well.

"I have a strong bias that assisted housing should not be put in one area and stigmatized," she said.

Other issues touched on during the conference were substance abuse prevention and environmental concerns. McAnally said she learned of some low-interest loans that may be available to the city to address environmental needs.

McAnally said she probably would have travelled to Washington to discuss the interchange whether or not the conference was staged, but she is pleased she was able to coordinate the two objectives.

ly. Methylene chloride is used to make paint thinner. Diethylamine is used as a detergent base.

Police officials have received reports of chemical residue on area cars and houses. The substance should be flushed away with water, police said. Residents noticing residue or other chemical related problems should call LeDuc at 942-6875.

At the scene of the explosion, cleanup and decontamination were handled by representatives of the Western Wayne County Hazardous Material Team and Marine Pollution Control.

Helpful to the situation was the training available to the volunteer firefighters on the scene, said William Greenslaid of the Romulus Fire Department. The 13 firefighters, along with one police officer, had recently completed a 32-hour course on handling chemical spills and fires.

Because of a recent "right-to-know" law for firefighters, city officials were required to develop emergency plans for all local sites containing extremely hazardous chemicals as determined by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Chemical Central did not qualify for a plan, but a chemical facility next door did have one. Because of the planning, dispatchers were better prepared to handle the explosion and fire officials had information on how to handle evacuation, LeDuc said.

"They followed those procedures precisely," she said.

Authorities are trying to learn possible consequences of the explosion along with long-term effects on the environment.

Population: 6-percent increase expected before year 2010

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Southeast Michigan will have a larger population, but not much larger, if predictions released last week for the year 2010 prove accurate.

The Southeast Michigan Coalition of Governments (SEMCOG) approved the 15-year forecast at its annual meeting June 22.

The Data Advisory Council for SEMCOG forecast that southeast Michigan will be home to 4,986,000 people in 2010, an increase of just less than 6 percent from the current figure of 4,701,000.

According to the report, the area will contain 2,098,000 total households in 2010, a 20-percent increase from the current total of 1,748,000. Individuals per household, however, is expected to decrease from the current average of 2.63.

Southeast Michigan, as defined by SEMCOG, includes the counties of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Livingston, Monroe and St. Clair. Members of the group include elected officials from those counties, as well as cities, townships, villages, community colleges and intermediate school districts from within those counties.

The forecast also included projections for the number of households, people per household, and jobs in the area.

According to the report, the area will contain 2,098,000 total households in 2010, a 20 percent increase from the current total of 1,748,000. Individuals per household, however, is expected to decrease from the current average of 2.63 to just 2.33, because of increases in single households, single-parent families and couples having only one child.

The population figure, originally set at 4.9 million, was adjusted upward to account for approximately 86,000 in census undercount.

SEMCOG included a projection for how the population is expected to grow in the next four five-year intervals. In 1995, the figure is expected to be 4,786,000; followed by 4,858,000 in the year 2000; and 4,924,000 in 2005.

The employment picture, according to the projections, is expected to improve after the first decade of the new century. SEMCOG projects 2,552,000 jobs in 2010, a 17 percent increase compared with 2,186,000 today.

Gail Kaess, a Grosse Pointe Farms councilwoman and chairwoman of the Data Center Advisory Council, said the council sees an increase of 514,000 in service jobs, along with a decrease of 78,000 in manufacturing jobs.

"We truly are moving from what was a factory town to an information processing, shopping center-oriented community," Kaess said.

The changes will be good news for educated people seeking work, Kaess said, as skilled workers become increasingly in demand. But the news does not bode well for those who attempt to enter the workforce without strong education, because the new job mix is expected to require that educational background.

Another demographic trend SEMCOG projects is more choices for so-called "empty nesters", people whose children have moved away and are nearing retirement. This segment of the population is expected to take advantage of condominium life, releasing themselves from burdens of home ownership.

New officers, budget OK'd for governments

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

The Southeast Michigan Coalition of Governments (SEMCOG) elected Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack as its chairman, along with its other 1989/90 officers at the annual meeting June 22.

Mack, who serves the 11th commission district in Wayne County, was elected to a one-year term as chairman of the group, which includes elected officials at all levels from Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, Monroe, Livingston and St. Clair counties.

Also elected were Detroit City Councilman Clyde Cleveland, as first vice chairman, along with four second vice chairs: Martha Hoyer, a Novi city councilwoman; Gerald McCaffrey, a member of the Macomb intermediate board of education; Jack Morris, supervisor of Pittsfield Township; and Richard Rudnicki, Livingston County drain commissioner.

Fred Korzon, supervisor of Bloomfield Township, assumed the position of immediate past chairman.

In remarks after his election, Mack said he intends to stress environmental challenges for SEMCOG and its members.

"I see the '90s as the decade of the environment," Mack said. "And solid waste is the key issue."

Solid waste is an issue that affects all levels of government, he said, because waste is often collected in cities and dumped by counties in townships.

Mack also chastised President George Bush for calling for clean air and not providing federal money to help get the job done.

In other action, SEMCOG approved a budget of $4.9 million budget for the fiscal year which begins July 1. The group is funded by federal and state grants, as well as by private contracts.

As part of the meeting, SEMCOG members heard from Pat Nowak, chairman of the Southeast Mobility Authority on Regional Transportation (SMART), and SMART general manager Albert Martin, about the progress of the regional transit system.

The bus system recently received a $14 million federal grant, and now plans added service to several parts of the region, including the Beech Daly-Ann Arbor Road area, and the Farmington, Sheldon and Haggerty areas, in Western Wayne County.

Despite the federal money, Martin said SMART will need some state matching funds to meet all of its goals for the coming year.

Future federal funds, however, could be eliminated, Nowak said.

With the need for local responsibility for transportation, Nowak cited the Nankin Transit system, based in Westland, as an example of how local governments can work with SMART to provide effective mass transit.

SMART officials expect to enact $200,000 in administrative costs next year, with the savings going into upgrading the bus system.

In a report from the SEMCOG Community and Economic Development Advisory Council, chaired by Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, council members warned against overreacting to growth.

The report was read by John Amberger, executive director of SEMCOG, who filled in for the absent McAnally.

"We would be foolish to try to stop the growth that will naturally occur in our suburbs and outlying areas," Amberger said.

Warm-weather alert issued for area pets

The 90-degree temperatures this week have prompted officials from the Michigan Humane Society Westland shelter to issue a warm-weather alert to pet owners.

The heat and humidity is tolerable for humans, but it can be potentially dangerous for pets, shelter workers said.

MHS officials offer the following tips:

- Never leave a pet unattended in a parked car. Even when the windows are left partially open, the temperature can rise to unbearable levels in a very short time, creating conditions for heat stroke and death.

- If the pet is outdoors, make sure he is confined and that shade and fresh, clean water are available at all times. Also, watch for any insect bites. They generally appear on the face and the ears. Consult the veterinarian if irregularities exist.

- Exercising and walks are best done in the early morning or late evenings, when temperatures are cooler.

- Be very careful about the use and storage of fertilizers, pesticides and cleaning products, to avoid accidental poisonings.

- Don't allow pets to hang their head out of the car window while driving. Never allow them to ride in the back of a pickup truck. Eye and ear infections can result from blowing airborne particles, as well as severe injury or death from leaping or being thrown out of a moving vehicle.

- Panting is a dog's way of "sweating." Never bind a dog's mouth closed. Some people tie or tape their dog's mouth closed to stop them from barking. This unacceptable training measure has resulted in heat-stroke and death.

- Be sure the dog has been tested for heart worm and is on preventative medication from April until the first frost. Unprotected dogs can obtain heart worm from an infective mosquito.

The Michigan Humane Society is a private, nonprofit organization that operates three shelters, three veterinary clinics and a wildlife rehabilitation clinic.

The local shelter is on Marquette, east of Newburgh. Call 721-7300 for specific information.

National champs Senior softball stars are masters at the mound

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

The dedicated softball players who made their way to St. Louis for the National Senior Olympics have returned home with a suitcase full of gold.

The ladies team of women ages 55 and older won the gold medal at the national event last week, showing all of the doubters that they could compete with the best.

The team, based in Canton Township, includes seniors from throughout the area. They take their game seriously, maintaining a rigorous practice and training schedule.

The ladies won their place at the national tournament and fought to earn the money to make the trip to St. Louis. Few financial supporters could be found, yet the ladies made it to the games.

"I feel like we really told those people who didn't believe in us off. It feels like heaven."

— Dottie Frinrock
Team member

"I feel like we really told those people who didn't believe in us off," Westland resident Dottie Frinrock said. "It feels like heaven."

Several of the ladies traveled by airplane to the games, while others endured the long drive in a car.

Once there, however, they put the struggle of collecting money behind them and focused all of their energies on the task at hand.

The ladies won three consecutive games in St. Louis, earning them a spot in the winner's circle. They then were pitted against another winning team for the gold. It was not an easy road to victory.

"It seemed our games were always played in the hot afternoon sun," Frinrock said. "It was terribly hot."

Frinrock estimated temperatures to be 95 degrees at game time and said the training team members endured actually paid off.

The ladies exercise regularly and are careful to warm up before practice and games. Most of the players are also involved in other recreational activities, such as walking clubs and volleyball.

As pitcher for the team, Frinrock also had to contend with another change of plans. In the tournament, the pitcher's mound is the distance used in professional softball.

In most senior citizens' games, the pitcher is permitted to stand a few feet closer to the batter.

"It was really tiring throwing the ball the extra distance," Frinrock said.

The seniors enjoyed the tournament and made new friends from throughout the country. They even found time to take advantage of tourist attractions in St. Louis, Frinrock said.

"I took one day and went to the arch and all over the place," Frinrock said.

The week went more quickly than the seniors wanted, but they "floated" back into town, according to relatives and friends of team members.

Frinrock, excited about the gold medal she will add to an already crowded trophy collection, met with Westland Mayor Charles Griffin yesterday to talk about her trip and show off the award.

Members of the senior citizens' team will continue to play softball during the summer months.

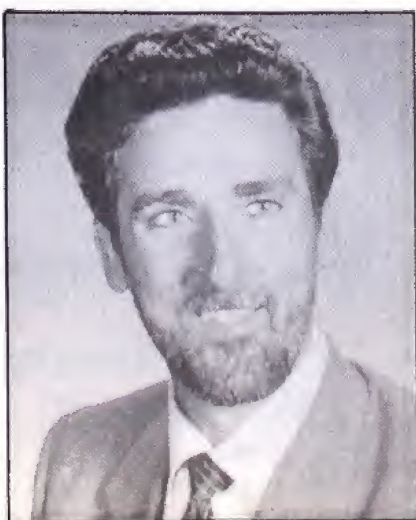

'Judge Mack' could become a future title

By DANIEL CALABRESE

Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack would neither confirm nor deny rumors that he might campaign for a post on the Wayne County Circuit Court in 1990.

Mack, a practicing attorney for the past 10 years, represents the 11th district of Wayne County, which includes Wayne, Belleville, Romulus and Canton Township.

Mack, whose 2-year term on the commission expires in 1990, placed his name on a list of those interested in a Circuit Court appointment in January.

Milton Mack

When three seats became vacant, Gov. James Blanchard did not select Mack to fill one of the slots.

Mack does not foresee an opening on the court until 1990, when Circuit Court elections will be staged.

Circuit Court judges be placed on the bench in two ways. They can be elected by the people, or appointed by the governor in the event of a resignation or retirement between elections.

Although he did not rule out entering the 1990 judicial election, Mack said it is not likely.

"My inclination would be to run for county commission at this point," he said. "A decision on that would have to be made six to nine months in advance."

Despite his interest in a judicial position, Mack said his constituents should not doubt his commitment to the county commission if he seeks reelection. He said he would intend to serve a full term because there is no guarantee that a judicial opportunity would arise.

"The judgeship was something that became available during my term," Mack said of the January opportunity. "It wasn't something that I planned ahead of time."

Outbreak continues

Additional measles cases are reported locally

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

The measles disease continues to spread throughout western Wayne County, despite efforts by county health officials to put a lid on the problem.

To date, 208 suspected, confirmed and probable cases have been reported throughout Wayne County, not including Detroit, according to statistics from the Wayne County Health Department.

"Spring and winter are really the prime seasons for measles. They will probably just smolder through the summer months," said Keith Tait, director of disease control for the Wayne County Health Department.

Now that the summer months have arrived and young people are out of school, health officials are faced with a new challenge in fighting the spread of measles.

"We no longer have the schools to act as reporting sites for us," Tait said. "Now, we must rely on all area physicians to report suspicious cases to us."

It has been three years, Tait said, since the area has been so plagued by widespread reports of the measles.

The type of condition being reported is often referred to as "hard measles" and can be very serious, Tait said. Symptoms include a fever of approximately 101 degrees, a rash and one of three cold symptoms - coughing, runny nose and sneezing.

The measles outbreak began at Garden City High School, after students there returned from spring break, Tait said. Students at the school who had not been properly vaccinated against measles were excluded from school and all activities.

Students at John Glenn High School, in Westland, were also affected by an exclusion order during the last two weeks of classes, forcing the cancellation of final examinations for

Measles disease is spreading

To date, 25 suspected or probable cases of measles have been reported to Wayne County Health Department officials in the areas served by the Associated Newspapers since the outbreak began shortly after spring break.

What follows is a city-by-city breakdown of the spread of the disease. A key to the chart is also provided below.

- C - Confirmed case. These are confirmed using a blood test.
- P - Probable cases. Individuals who have a rash for three days, a 101-degree or higher fever and one of three cold symptoms - cough, irritated eyes or runny nose.
- S - Suspected case. Individuals are warm to touch and show some of the symptoms of the probable cases.

students who were not properly vaccinated.

However, only one actual case was reported at John Glenn. Health officials labeled that case as "probable" and not "confirmed" because the student did not possess all of the symptoms of the measles disease.

Nevertheless, five probable cases and one suspected case within the city of Westland have since been reported, Tait said. Residents in Belleville, Canton Township, Inkster, Wayne and Romulus are also suspected to be afflicted by the disease - after probable and suspected cases were reported.

The disease is very contagious, Tait explained. It can be acquired by a person who is in the same room as an afflicted person. Symptoms often do not appear for several days.

Those who were vaccinated for measles before the age of 15 months should be revaccinated, Tait said.

'2 cents makes sense'

Lawmakers endorse school-reform plans

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

If local state lawmakers had their way, voters would approve a 2 cents sales-tax increase and give themselves a substantial property-tax break in the Nov. 7 election.

The lawmakers have placed two long-awaited school finance-reform proposals on the ballot for voter consideration. The decision to place the two ballot proposals before voters was approved June 14 by members of the state House of Representatives, 89-16, and members of the state Senate, 26-11.

One of the plans would increase the state sales tax by 1/2 cent. The other would increase sales taxes by 2 cents and cut residential property taxes by approximately one-third.

If voters approve both proposals, the one with the greater number of positive votes will prevail. If both plans are rejected, school finance-reform will return to the drawing boards.

The proposals are being labeled "A" and "B" - "A" is the 1/2 cent sales-tax hike, "B" is the 2 cent tax increase.

State Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton Township) said he favors the 2 cent tax-hike proposal because it provides property-tax relief.

"There is a clear, distinctive choice come November," Kosteva said. "And I tend to support the 2 cents proposal because it offers needed property-tax relief on one hand, and, on the other, it provides long-term solutions for schools."

"The other proposal, in my opinion, is a short-term solution that doesn't address the problems or concerns of our schools or our taxpayers."

State Rep. William Keith (D-Garden City) agreed.

"A 1/2 cent doesn't do anything for our schools, as far as I am concerned," Keith said. "It obviously isn't going to help the homeowner or business community either. It's a Bandaid approach to a major problem."

What would school reform do?

School finance-reform proposals would pump more money into education, lawmakers contend. Proposal A - which includes a 1/2 cent sales-tax increase - would generate $400 million for education. Proposal B - a 2 cent sales-tax hike and property-tax reduction - would generate $500 million for schools.

Proposal B also features an average 37-percent decrease in residential property taxes. A 16-percent tax break is eyed for Michigan businesses.

What follows is the local impact of both proposals. Listed is each local school district, the current millage rate (MIL), current per-pupil spending (PPS) and those figures when Proposal A and Proposal B are considered.

DISTRICT	CURRENT PPS	CURRENT MIL	PROPOSAL A PPS	PROPOSAL A MIL	PROPOSAL B PPS	PROPOSAL B MIL

* Residential millage rates listed above are for school district operational purposes only. Debt-retirement mills would be unaffected.

 Current millage rates quoted are based on Feb. 6, 1989, figures.

The communities I represent need help both in the classroom and in form of lower taxes.

"Proposal B will solve two problems in one stroke," Keith continued.

State Sen. George Hart (D-Dearborn), whose district includes the city of Inkster, said he wasn't ready to vote for either proposal on the Legislature floor until he received assurances that the senior citizens, renters and low-income families do not suffer. Hart received those assurances in the form of amendments.

"It's obvious that the current formula and system used to fund our schools is unfair," Hart said. "And it's getting tougher and tougher for school districts to go to the taxpayers and ask for millage increases."

"Although no proposal is a perfect solution to the problem, I believe that we have taken a step in the right direction by offering these proposals for voter scrutiny."

Casting "yes" votes to place the two issues on the November ballot were the following local lawmakers: state Reps. Justine Barns (D-Westland), Keith, Kosteva, Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) and Lynn Owen (D-Maybee); and state Sens. Hart and William Faust (D-Westland).

Casting a "no" vote was local state Sen. Robert Geake (D-Northville).

If voters approve the sales-tax increase from 4 to 6 cents, it would become effective Jan. 1, 1990. The tax increase would also affect electricity use-taxes and heat bills.

MUPPET TRAFFIC SAFETY SHOW

© HA! 1988

WESTLAND CENTER
June 29 - July 2, Center Court

LIGHTS, CAMERA...ACTION!

Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and all of your favorite Muppet friends are here to show you how to "Play It Safe!"

Jim Henson's Muppets are bringing a Hollywood movie "Backlot" to your shopping center to show you and your friends how to stay safe in and around cars.

Take a ride through Muppet Studios, and through the magic of robotics. Kermit, Miss Piggy, Fozzie, Gonzo, Animal and a lovable cast of supporting characters will teach your children some important traffic safety lessons.

Plus there'll be lots of music, merriment... And maybe a surprise or two! So come "Play It Safe," with Kermit and the gang at Jim Henson's MUPPET TRAFFIC SAFETY SHOW!

"Play It Safe" is supported by the National Fraternal Order of Police, the National Parent Teacher Association, the National Safety Town Center, and the U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. "Play It Safe" is sponsored by The Plymouth Division of Chrysler Motors.

Signs luring teens to area fast-food establishments already tout a wage higher than the $3.35 required by federal law. Area teens like talk of higher minimum wage

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Some local teens expressed support last week for a hike in the minimum wage, but both workers and employers are concerned that such an increase would result in lost jobs. President George Bush vetoed a bill that would have increased the minimum wage from $3.35 per hour to $4.55, and has promised to veto any increase that surpasses $4.25 per hour and does not include a six-month training wage of $3.35. Congressional Democrats have vowed to continue pushing for an increase.

Locally, many teens acknowledged that they would welcome the chance to earn more money.

Tracey Doeden, who works at Hardee's on Wayne Road in Westland, said the increase would have both good and bad results.

"I think it's great to a certain extent," Doeden said. "But with that, there's going to be inflation of everything else."

Toby Pratt, 17, who is working at Kroger's on Michigan Avenue in Wayne while preparing to enter Henry Ford Community College, said a minimum wage increase would force all wages up. Pratt, who earns $4.75 per hour after a year-and-a-half at Kroger's, said he would expect a raise if workers now making $3.50 per hour were to receive $4.55.

But he said such an increase is necessary.

"I just got a second job to make it through the summer," Pratt said.

While Pratt acknowledged that some workers may lose their jobs if the cost of labor increases, he said good people have nothing to fear.

"It might get rid of the people that aren't doing anything anyway," Pratt said.

Steve Stamenkovich, who co-owns Colony House Family Dining on Wayne Road in Westland, said the proposed minimum wage increase would force him to fire between five and seven employees. Stamenkovich said he would have to compensate for the lost employees by working extra hours himself.

"I have a wife and kids, and I like to get home early," Stamenkovich said.

Steve Munger, who owns and operates All-American Wash and Wax on Michigan Avenue in Wayne, said he starts his workers at $4 per hour. But while the proposed increase would force his wages up slightly, he said he would not have to lay workers off.

"I would just raise prices," he said.

Munger said the mandated wage hike is unnecessary, because the private concerns can better determine wages.

"The marketplace pretty much dictates what they should make," he said.

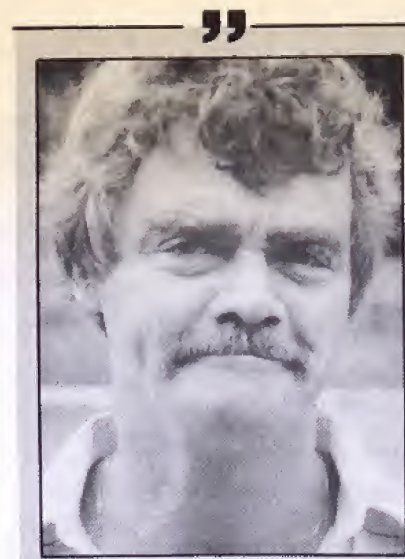

Many businesses are currently offering more than the minimum wage, including McDonald's on Wayne Road in Westland, which is seeking employees to start at $4 per hour.

Chris Lonske, who works with Doeden at the Westland Hardee's, said the hike to $4.55 may be too much for employers to handle.

"I think $4 would be reasonable," Doeden said. "They're asking a lot raising it from $3.35 to $4.55."

Ray Swartz, who owns Auto Works in the Wayne Commons shopping center, said he starts his workers at more than minimum wage. But he said he has mixed feelings about wages being forced up by Congress.

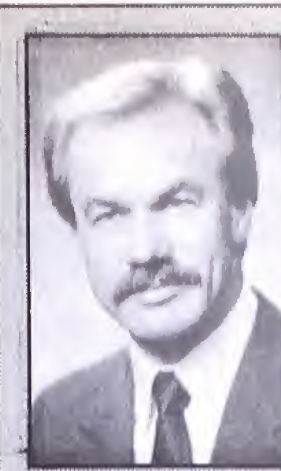

"I'm from the old school," Swartz said. "When I started working, the minimum wage was about $2 an hour."

However, residential electricity and heating customers who have a household income of less than 150 percent of the federal poverty level would be exempt from the 6-percent utilities sales tax.

The current poverty level is $12,200 for a family of four. Thus, a household of four people earning less than 150 percent of the federal poverty level could make no more than

There is a clear, distinctive choice come November. And I tend to support the 2 cents proposal because it offers needed property-tax relief on one hand, and, on the other, it provides long-term solutions for schools. The other proposal is . . . a short-term solution.

$18,300 annually to be eligible for the tax exemption.

If Proposal B is approved, effective July 1990, school operating property taxes will be reduced to a local foundation millage (see accompanying chart for specific school districts) rate set for each school district. This is in addition to a statewide property tax of 14 mills on business property and 9 mills on non-business property.

There is a guarantee of $3,540 to be spent per pupil if either of the proposals passes.

Most fireworks are prohibited in area

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Although fireworks are often associated with the Fourth of July, state and local officials hope to remind people this season that most firework devices are illegal throughout the year.

In Michigan, any type of firework or firecracker that creates a loud noise, leaves the ground or creates an aerial display is illegal without a permit, according to Lt. Terry Mowen of the Michigan State Police. Included in this category are skyrockets, torpedoes, Roman candles, bottle rockets, firecrackers, M80s, whistling chasers, rockets on sticks, spinners and wheels.

Under most circumstances only professionals who intend to use the devices for a public display are issued permits.

The firework laws go back to 1931, Mowen said. Those violating them will be considered guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by 90 days in jail and/or a $100 fine.

State law does allow the use of toy smoke devices without permits, such as small sparklers, paper cap toys and snakes.

Despite these laws, firecrackers were the cause of one fatality and 117 injuries in Michigan last year. In addition, 45 Michigan fires were blamed on fireworks along with $27,600 in property loss. Those figures are the result of a recent state police survey.

Locally, city and township ordinances are similar or stricter than the state laws.

• In Inkster, to sell or possess fireworks of any kind, a permit is required. In addition, these permits must be obtained through the Inkster fire marshal's office after the fireworks in question have been inspected. Permits only apply to the approved fireworks.

• Canton Township follows the state guidelines, allowing only items such as smoke bombs and sparklers less than 1/8-inch thick.

• In Belleville it is against the law to sell, expose or have in one's possession any kind of firework.

• The situation is the same in Wayne, all fireworks, including sparklers, are prohibited. They cannot be sold or carried within the city limits.

• Romulus, like the state, requires permits for any fireworks that leave the ground and create a visual display or loud noise. Permits are available through the city clerk's office. Permits to sell fireworks are only issued for businesses within permanent buildings and are subject to numerous public safety requirements.

• Westland basically enforces state law. Only professionals planning a public display are issued permits. Citizens cannot have in their possession any firework that creates a loud noise, leaves the ground or creates an aerial display without a permit.

Bob Perry, Westland fire marshal, said he wishes people understood the risk they take by using illegal fireworks. "Those things are so dangerous it's unbelievable," he said.

In Westland, 10 to 15 injuries from fireworks are reported each year, Perry said. They range from explosions in the victim's face to fingers blown off people's hands. During the city display last year, he said, one of the professionals setting off the fireworks was injured when a firework exploded prematurely and burned the man's shoulder.

Student statesmen

A trip to Washington, D.C., turned out to be a historic one for members (above) of the sixth-grade class Halecreek Elementary School, in Romulus. As students met on the steps of the U.S. Capitol earlier this month, local Congressman William D. Ford (D-Taylor) - standing in the far right of the photograph - was inside the House of Representatives selecting new Speaker of the House Thomas Foley. Another trip highlight was a flag presented to the class. The flag was flown over the Capitol in honor of Halecreek. Flages were also presented to student patriotic-essay-contest winners. This was the fifth annual Washington trip organized by Halecreek teacher Gayle McGlinnis. ANP sepcial photo

Year in review

‘Legislators could have been more productive’

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

As state legislators return to Lansing for budget negotiations, many senators and representatives believe 1988-89 could have been a more productive year.

They also believe, however, that steps in the right direction were taken on several issues, including two proposals for school finance reform.

Rather than settling the issue of school finance in Lansing, legislators decided to go to the voters with two proposals. The first would increase the sales tax by two cents and offer property-tax relief. The second would provide for a half-cent sales tax increase to benefit schools. Rep. Gerald Law (R-Plymouth) isn't convinced either proposal will be approved by voters in November.

"It will show us (legislators) where the people stand on education and how it should be funded," Law said.

Several local lawmakers prefer a proposal to offer property-tax relief and a two-cent increase of the state sales tax rather than the half-cent package.

"To stay right where we are right now would not hurt the Plymouth-Canton school district because it is an out-of-formula school district," Law said. "I don't think people in my district are real excited about either one."

Reps. Lynn Owen (D-Maybee) and James Kosteva (D-Canton) are pleased that the two proposals will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot.

"There has been a lot of confusion and debate over this and it gives the voter a multiple choice on how we should fund education," Owen said.

"I don't have any idea that either one will pass but from talking to people in my district, I think the two-cent increase in sales tax and the relief on property taxes is the more popular one."

But Sen. Geake (R-Northville) doesn't believe either one is popular enough to gain approval and sees the proposals "as a waste of money."

"It's futile," Geake said. "There is no chance the people are going to accept either one. It's a waste of $6 million, which is what it's going to cost to put these two on the ballot."

Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) said neither one goes far enough.

"The half-cent increase in sales tax just brings in more money, it doesn't address the overall problem of how to better finance schools," Faust said. "And I don't feel the other one solves the problem of equity in the school districts."

Geake and Faust also agree when it comes to the progress of the budget, which is currently tied up in a political battle between the governor and the legislators.

"It could take a couple of weeks to complete or it could take all summer," Geake said.

Faust called the situation "the most political scene he has ever encountered."

Faust said the failures are more dramatic than the successes of the legislature this term, but suggested there were some positive notes.

"We did a lot with public health and nursing funding. And a number of bills for the environment were approved," Faust said.

Most legislators were also pleased with the approval of sand dune legislation, in an attempt to protect the dunes from developers.

"Sand dunes are a valuable resource and unique in the world and we don't want to see them ruined," Geake said.

Among the environmental achievements was a bill which will require unclaimed money on bottle deposits to be set aside for recycling and environmental improvements.

Abortion battle rages

Pro-choice supporters are escorts

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

Members of the Downriver Chapter of the National Organization of Women are doing their part to ensure that area women who want to have an abortion are free to do so.

Chapter members are offering themselves as escorts to walk clients into clinics and through the lines of anti-abortion demonstrators.

"We offer escort services to any clinic in the area," said Catalina Hall, president of the local NOW chapter.

Pro-choice advocates are not taking direct steps to influence a U.S. Supreme Court decision dealing with abortion, but they continue to educate the public about their concerns through educational meetings and individual counseling, Hall said.

Members of the U.S. Supreme Court have agreed to hear Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services. The Missouri case stems from a state law that restricts abortions and maintains that life begins at conception.

The case, being appealed by state officials - who have been staunch supporters of the anti-abortion movement - has been ruled unconstitutional three times by lower federal courts.

The case is being watched closely by abortion critics and supporters, because it could alter the landmark 1973 Supreme Court decision - Roe vs. Wade - which legalized abortions throughout the country.

Experts say members of the current Supreme Court could overturn Roe vs. Wade by allowing the contested Missouri law to stand. If that happens, the decision of whether abortions are legal or not would be returned to state lawmakers.

"We will not change the court decision," Hall explained.

In fact, Hall maintains that the vocal demonstrations staged by anti-abortion forces do more to help the pro-choice cause.

"Every day, after a demonstration, I get more and more calls from people interested in joining us," Hall said. "The demonstrators seem to make some patients more sure of what they want to do."

Hall disputes claims that her organization hates children. Pro-choice advocates are concerned with the rights of all children, including those who are unwanted, Hall said.

"We do not bomb clinics or harm children," she said.

Members of the pro-choice movement maintain that right-to-life groups are spreading false information, such as reports of women who die during abortion procedures.

Hall argues that such reports are untrue. And, as long as abortion remains legalized, women will be less likely to die from the procedure, she said.

"It will be a sad day when they end abortion rights in this state," Hall explained.

Pro-lifers fight with no violence

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

Local residents who are active in the right-to-life movement continue to fight for their cause - without becoming involved in physical protests.

As members of the U.S. Supreme Court prepare to issue a decision in a controversial abortion case which could bring an end to legalized abortions at the federal level and return the decision to the states, local right-to-life activists continue to state their own case.

"We speak out against abortion through education," Sonda Stepchuck said.

A Romulus resident, Stepchuck is very active in the right-to-life movement. The Romulus Chapter of Right-to-Life has gained several active members in recent months. These members have planned several educational opportunities for the community, Stepchuck said.

"Education involves both sides," Stepchuck said. "We distribute literature to help people make up their minds."

Right-to-life activists push for legislation on the abortion issue consistently, but they are not usually known to block the doors to clinics where abortions are performed.

Operation Rescue is another anti-abortion organization of which members gather in protests outside clinics. The demonstrations have proven to be costly, however, after some clinics were bombed and some demonstrators were arrested.

"I do not see members of our organization doing that kind of thing, but I can see them praying," Stepchuck said. "If those people are called to do that, however, then it is fine."

Legislation making abortion illegal will not keep women from having abortions, Stepchuck admits. But, she said, making abortion illegal is a "step in the right direction."

Hot treats for a cool summer

just desserts

sue willert

Veal scaloppini, cajun yellow-fin tuna, blackened beef tenderloin, creamy fish chowder and the most delectable fresh fruits known were but a few of the treats offered by local restaurants Sunday at the International Taste of Westland at the Westland mall.

There were wonderful fruit pies, divine dried fruits and nuts, prime rib, pasties, corned beef sandwiches, shish kebab and, oh, the homemade lasagne. It was, in short, a gourmet's delight.

Wandering among the food offerings, where one was served all these delicacies and more, guests were overwhelmed with the food and the friendly, informative chefs talking about their favorite creations. For those who missed it, try to get tickets now for next year. If the food wouldn't entice you, the entertainment should.

This is an event of such style, originality and class, it's a credit to the whole area. In short, I loved it. My only complaint is that I doubled my weight during the evening and have to wait a whole year for the event to happen again.

And, I didn't manage to stop eating long enough to get the recipe for the fantastic napoleons or find out what was in the buffalo chicken-wing dip. Oh well, maybe next year.

It was wonderful to stuff up on all those treats in air-conditioned comfort and not have to cook in this heat. To that end, I tried to find some cool treats that would taste great without too much effort on the cook's part.

These aren't quite as terrific as having one of the professional chefs who exhibited at the Taste of Westland prepare it for you, but it'll have to do until next year.

Cherry cheese pie

- 1 9-inch baked pie shell (can be graham cracker)
- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
- 1 14-ounce can Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1/3 cup reconstituted lemon juice
- 1 large can cherry pie filling

In large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Beat in Eagle Brand until smooth. Stir in lemon juice and vanilla. Pour into crust. Chill three hours or until set. Top with pie filling. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

Easy fruit tarts

- 1 3 1/4-ounce package instant pudding
- 8 baked 3-inch tart shells
- 1-2 cups assorted fresh fruit
- 1 3-ounce package strawberry, raspberry or orange gelatin

Prepare pudding as directed on package and chill. Divide evenly among tart shells. Top with any of the fruit combinations suggested. Chill. Meanwhile, prepare gelatin as directed on package. Chill until just thickened. Spoon gelatin over tarts, using just enough to cover fruit with a smooth glaze. Chill until ready to serve. Garnish with whipped cream.

Suggested fruits: Blueberries and grapes, blueberries and peaches, strawberries and green grapes, strawberries and bananas, blueberries and green grapes, green grapes and mandarin orange slices, pineapple with bing cherries, blueberries with strawberries in center, apricot halves with mint sprigs, layered peach slices, whole strawberries.

▲ The aroma of honest-to-goodness family cooking can again be detected in the kitchens of Posey's Kitchens, the Inkster restaurant which members of the Posey family reopened this year. Helping in the kitchen are daughter Estelle Green (from

A Posey in the kitchen

Love for cooking is key ingredient in family business

By FLORENCE MEEKS
 ANP Staff Writer

Years ago, the kitchen was the last place in the world Inkster resident Estelle Green wanted to be.

Today, she is hooked on cooking. Green helps her father and brother operate their recently opened Inkster restaurant, Posey's Kitchen. She also caters on the side.

Why the switch?

Green fell in love with the creative side of cooking. When her ex-husband decided to go into the food business, several years ago, Green was captivated by the idea. Operating out of Georgia, the couple catered for colleges throughout the Southeast.

When the marriage ended, Green's new-found interest continued.

Her father, Elijah Posey, invited Green to return to Inkster and help him manage Posey's Kitchen. He originally built the restaurant 15 years ago but later closed it. Green accepted the offer, and the family business re-opened in January.

Green also decided to go one step further and obtain a formal education in food preparation. She recently earned a certificate in culinary arts from a local vocational school.

She believes a business like Posey's Restaurant is important to her community.

Because of the increasing concern for healthy diets, Green tries to substitute nutritious choices for deep-fried foods. Her vegetables are prepared without salt. When she does fry, she uses safflower or peanut oil.

"I'm ready to start making egg-less cakes," Green said.

Although she enjoys working in the restaurant, Green admits the catering is her favorite part, because it offers more opportunities to be creative. Past masterpieces include an eggplant transformed into an owl, a watermelon peacock and a piano cake.

Instead of the traditional finger sandwiches, Green makes pasty puffs, using various fillings. Instead of a bowl of cole slaw, she creates artistic displays.

Carvings, such as carrots transformed into palm trees, are another of Green's favorites.

Although Green insisted that some of her recipes are secrets—such as those for her banana pudding and special macaroni and cheese—she did agree to supply a few of her more popular dishes for readers.

Pork chop suey

- 3 pounds pork shoulder
- 1 quart chicken stock
- 8 ounces mushrooms
- 2 pounds celery, chopped
- 8 ounces green pepper, chopped
- 1 pound, 8 ounces onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 4 ounces margarine
- 2 1/4 quart meat drippings
- 1 pound drained bean sprouts
- 6 ounces cornstarch
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/4 cup green pepper, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup celery, finely chopped
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup oatmeal
- 1/3 cup evaporated milk

Brown pork in 450-degree oven for 45 minutes. Add chicken stock to meat. Cover. Cook 1 hour in 375-degree oven. Remove from oven. Drain. Keep stock and meat separate until needed. Cook vegetables in fat until cooked but still crisp, stirring frequently.

Combine pork drippings and chicken stock. Add to cooked vegetables. Add cooked pork and bean sprouts. Bring mixture to boil. Combine corn starch, water and soy sauce to make a smooth paste. Add to hot mixture. Stir well. Cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Serve over rice or fried noodles. Yields 25 servings. Ideal recipe for family reunions and barbecues.

Beef stroganoff

- 1 1/2 teaspoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- Dash cayenne
- 1/2 pound boneless chuck steak
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- 1 small can sliced mushrooms, drained
- or 12 fresh mushrooms, washed, trimmed and sliced
- 1/2 cup sour cream, thinned with milk
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 package flat noodles

Mix flour and next 4 ingredients. Cut meat into very thin strips. Trim off any fat. Heat butter in skillet. Add meat and onion slices. Cook, stirring over high heat to brown a bit. Add mushrooms and more butter, if necessary. Cover skillet and cook over low heat for 15 to 20 minutes or until meat is tender.

Add seasoned flour to pan and stir to mix all ingredients. Add sour cream and simmer, stirring until liquid is thickened and smooth. Add more salt and pepper to taste. Serve over hot, lightly buttered noodles (which have been prepared according to package directions).

Old-fashioned meat loaf

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 large can tomatoes, drained
- 12 ounces tomato sauce
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning

Mix drained tomatoes, green peppers, celery, onion, 8 ounces of tomato sauce, egg and milk into ground beef. Mix dry ingredients and add to meat. Place in loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Pour remaining tomato sauce over hot meat loaf. Turn oven off.

Place loaf into warm oven, allowing sauce to simmer in. (Note: For special sauce, combine tomato sauce with honey, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice and mustard powder).

Chicken noodle casserole

- 8 to 10 ounces noodles, cooked and drained
- 10-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
- 10-ounce can cheddar cheese soup
- 1/3 cup milk
- 1 package frozen peas and carrots
- 8 ounces cooked chicken, cut up
- 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs

Combine soups, vegetables, milk, chicken, butter and noodles. Pour into 2-quart saucepan. Cover. Cook on low heat until flavors are blended. Remove from heat and top with bread crumbs and cheese. Makes 6 to 9 servings.

Powdered-sugar pound cake

- 1/2 pound butter or 3 sticks margarine
- 1 pound powdered sugar
- 1 sugar box of sifted flour
- 6 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar. Add vanilla, salt and eggs. Add flour. Beat thoroughly until blended. Grease bottom of tube cake pan. Bake 1 hour in 350-degree oven.

BUSINESS NEWS DIGEST

Amended returns still accepted

Taxpayers who need to file an amended income-tax return — either by adding additional income they should have claimed or learning of deductions they could have taken — may do so within three years of the filing deadline, according to officials at the Michigan Tax Information Council.

Because tax laws may change retroactively occasionally, officials said, an amended return may be needed. Form 1040X, "Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return," was designed for these situations.

For more information, call the Michigan Tax Information Council at (517) 372-1050.

Job training is available

Laid-off autoworkers and low-income and unemployed people may qualify for free training at Wayne County Community College to become a certified auto mechanic. Students who successfully complete the program will be placed in jobs, according to college officials.

For more information, call 579-6989.

Federal workers are being sought

Qualified people are being sought for federal-government positions in the scientific, medical and clerical fields, according to federal recruitment officials.

Free job information is available from the Detroit area office of the U.S. Office of Personnel Management. Call 226-6950.

Wayne company nets recognition

Law Auto Sales, a used-car automobile dealer, in Wayne, was honored recently for business growth. The business was named to the Inc. 500 list, which honors the fastest-growing, private companies in the U.S.

To be eligible for the list, a company must have been independent and privately operated since Aug. 1, 1988. The 1988 rankings were based on the percentage increase in sales from 1983 through 1987.

Each company must also have shown an increase in sales between 1986 and 1987.

Business leaders meet city leaders

A meeting between Wayne city officials, business owners and residents of the community will begin at 7:30 a.m. July 6 in the Wayne Community Center, on Howe Road, at Annapolis, Wayne.

At the meeting, business representatives may voice their opinions and concerns about the city, business ventures and growth. All residents are welcome.

Wayne chamber nets new members

Owners of two Wayne businesses have been accepted as new members of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

Su and Jung Kim, owners of Kim's Jewelry and Gifts, have been located in Metro Place Mall, in Wayne, for five years. Available at the store are hats, bags, belts, shirts, gold and silver jewelry and other gift collectibles.

In addition, Ashok and Karmlesh Goyal, owners of Boutique Plus, has also been located in the Metro Place Mall. Available at the store is a complete line of Hallmark greeting cards and plaster and ceramic collectibles.

Massey: Auto dealerships are not for sale

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer

Plymouth-based auto dealer Don Massey denied published reports Monday that he plans to sell his three Cadillac dealerships.

Massey said he was shocked to read a report in the Detroit Free Press that he is planning to sell his three dealerships — located in Plymouth, Livonia and Lansing — to Tom Monaghan, owner of the Detroit Tigers and Domino's Pizza.

"I read that article in the paper this morning," Massey said. "It was probably a bigger shock to me than it was to you."

Massey believes the rumor began several years ago, when he sold his Ann Arbor home to Monaghan, whom he described as his neighbor. But, he said, while he considers it a "compliment" to be mentioned in the same breath as the wealthy Monaghan, Massey is tired of the publicity regarding the rumor.

"We're not selling," Massey said. "We have not made a deal."

Massey also denied that there have been any discussions with Monaghan or any other potential buyers of the three dealerships.

"If God and the economy don't take me out, I would be willing to bet that I'll be here five years," Massey said.

Nevertheless, John McDevitt, president of Thomas S. Monaghan Inc., said Monday that his group has tried unsuccessfully to persuade Massey to sell.

"We've talked to Don Massey over the last year or so about his dealerships," McDevitt said. "And, even though we did offer to buy the dealerships and offered to pay him in excess of $50 million for the dealerships, he has refused to sell."

McDevitt said the relationship between Monaghan and Massey is strong. He would not discount the possibility of a future deal.

"You can never tell," McDevitt said. "It's possible, but how probable it is, it's hard to say."

Reports of the rumored sale were published in Bob Talbert's column in the Detroit Free Press Monday.

Don Massey Cadillac is ranked as the 50th largest auto dealership in the nation by Ward's Auto Dealer magazine. In the state of Michigan, the dealership is ranked number eight.

1988 dealership revenues were listed at $95.5 million, down from $105.5 million in 1987, according to the magazine. New-vehicle sales last year were 1,766 units, a decline from the 1,944 sold in 1987, the magazine said.

Sold at the three Massey dealerships are the Cadillac, Rolls Royce and Sterling new-car lines. Massey also operates used-car lots, including one in the city of Wayne.

The local dealership is not for sale, explains owner Don Massey (above), whose Cadillac-Rolls Royce luxury cars have become noted throughout the area. ANP file photo

Northwest sale won't alter expansion plans

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

News of the recent buyout of Northwest Airlines is being well received by local officials, who are confident that airline expansion plans for the Detroit Metropolitan Airport, in Romulus, will proceed as planned.

On June 19, a $4 billion buyout offer from a group led by Los Angeles investor Alfred Checchi was accepted by Northwest Airlines officials, according to reports.

Prior to the deal, county officials were alarmed because plans for a $908 million airport expansion were delayed, as Northwest officials braced themselves for a takeover.

Northwest controls more than one-half of the air traffic at the Metro Airport.

Expansion plans include a new terminal, runway and access road.

Now that Checchi's offer has been accepted, however, county officials expect the expansion plans to continue.

Michael Duggan, deputy Wayne County executive, said airline officials have committed $3 million to a new terminal.

"They agreed to go forward with the terminal expansion, and we agreed not to go forward with our lawsuit," Duggan said.

County officials had filed a lawsuit against Northwest, hoping to help airlines officials to remember their prior commitments to the airport expansion plans.

Future development projects in the cities of Inkster, Romulus and Westland hinge — to some degree — on the airport expansion. A study currently under way will reveal how these communities can best cash in on airport growth.

Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally believes the Northwest purchase may slow the expansion process but that planned growth ultimately will happen.

"I don't mind making progress slowly," she said.

McAnally would also like to see a carefully planned airport expansion that will not negatively impact the city of Romulus.

Other city officials are equally as optimistic.

"The plans will progress. They've already started some work on one of the hangars," said Inkster Mayor Joe Davis.

"I hope the new people will be sensitive to the people in this area," said Joseph Benyo, a consultant for the city of Westland.

Areawide home sales decline during May

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

Home sales in western Wayne County remained steady during the month of May, despite a sudden decline in interest rates.

Area Realtors attributed the lack of interest in the market to the time of the year.

"People are busy with graduations and other activities," said Karen McCormick, a Realtor with Century 21, in Canton Township.

The market usually picks up during the spring, slows during early summer and then picks up again, McCormick said.

Now that interest rates have declined slightly to the 10-percent level, Realtors are expecting a Third-generation florist Carl Keller (above) has seen the local florist business expand and hopes his children continue the business after he "retires." ANP photo by Barbara Wilson

Blooming business Keller & Stein is built on family pride

By BARBARA WILSON
ANP News Editor

This is the house that Keller & Stein built. It's made of wood and glass and plastic. The house is filled with flowers and plants of all sizes, varieties and colors.

The Keller & Stein greenhouses were moved to the current location on Michigan Avenue, in Canton Township, approximately four years ago. But that was not the beginning of the partnership and the affiliation with plants and flowers for the founders of the local business.

The first Keller & Stein florist shop was opened in 1898 in Detroit.

Three generations later, the flower shop is still operated by a Keller — the Steins have left the business. There are two stores and 42 full-time employees.

Carl Keller, grandson of the founder, is proud to be a third-generation florist. He has seen the business expand and hopes his children continue the business after he "retires." A fourth-generation Keller just began working at the family store.

Some expansion plans may be in the works for Keller & Stein. Additional parking, new plastic greenhouses to replace glass ones and a larger gift shop are all goals for Carl Keller.

The business of growing flowers, however, changes more slowly.

All perennials and many of the cut flowers used are grown from seeds in the greenhouses, according to manager Jan Wood. Now that the spring planting season has ended, poinsettia seeds have been sowed in rows and rows of beds in the greenhouses.

"People can hardly believe they are poinsettias," Wood said. "They think they're tomatoes or something."

Seeds for the summer plants — impatiens, geraniums, etc. — are sowed in January or February each year, Wood said. This year, growers planted 15,000 geraniums and 20 different varieties. Impatiens, however, remain the top seller.

From field of dreams - a dream team

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Like Kevin Costner in his Field of Dreams, Kelley O'Neal has dreamt that he would one day wear a Detroit Tiger baseball uniform.

And from the beginning, the 5-10, 160-pound Belleville High just-graduated senior worked to make that dream come true.

Two weeks ago, O'Neal's dream came true as he was drafted in the ninth round of the pro draft by the Detroit Tigers baseball club. Kelley is presently in Bristol, Virginia working toward the day he will be moved up to the big leagues.

"His goal has always been to play professional baseball," said Belleville Coach John Bertz who has coached O'Neal for the past four years. "And he especially wanted to be drafted by the Tigers."

"All of that has come true for Kelley. Of course, there is still a lot of things that have to happen before he moves up, however, even if it doesn't the kid Kelley has a four-year scholarship waiting for him at almost any college he wants to attend."

O'Neal leads the 1989 Associated Newspapers' All-Area Baseball selections. The players were drafted by the ANP Sports Staff, in cooperation with the area high school coaches.

Joining O'Neal in the elite club are: Pitchers Jeremy Ison (Belleville) and Skip Overmeyer (Robichaud); Catchers Shawn Shelby (Romulus) and Joe McLeod (New Boston Huron); First Base - Jerry Bitner (Belleville) and Joseph Stokes (Inkster); Infielders: Vince Sacco (Belleville), Phil Feist (Belleville), and O'Neal (Belleville); Outfielders - Tyrone Orr (Inkster), Mike Debozy (NB Huron), Russ Shumak (Robichaud), Chris Labiak (Romulus) and Tyrone Orr (Inkster).

The 1989 ANP Sports Staff's Coach of the Year honors went to Belleville High's John Bertz for his record-setting, Wolverine Conference title-winning season. The Tigers posted a 21-5 won-lost season during the recently-completed campaign.

Here is a thumbnail picture of the 1989 All-Area Team:

O'NEAL, a three-year varsity performer for the Tigers, closed his prep career with a hefty .420 batting average. He hammered eight homers and scored 41 times while knocking home 19 runs. Kelley also had a perfect 19 of 19 record for attempted steals.

"He is one of the best, if not the best player I have had the privilege to coach," Bertz said. "He's all baseball. He set his goals early in life, and he is working to make them a reality."

ISON, a 6-2, 175-pound junior, was the key to the Tiger pitching rotation. He came on strong and helped lift the club to their first conference baseball title, winning seven of his eight starts on the mound. A right-hander who has excellent control, he finished with a 2.61 Earned Run Average (ERA) and only walked 13 batters in 48 innings of work.

Ison also came through at the plate with his clutch hitting. He finished his junior year with a 2.94 average and was picked for All-Wolverine Conference recognition.

OVERMEYER, who had a 5-3 record with the Bulldogs of Robichaud, posted a pair of no-hit shutouts (against Highland Park and Inkster). A four-year letterwinner, Skip batted .513 and blasted three homers in a 12-14 Robichaud season.

"He is one of the quietest players we had this year," said Coach Chuck Stubbe. "He let his performances do the talking for him. And he has been our ace for the last two years."

SHELBY, Romulus' team captain and the first-string catcher for the past two years, was picked for all-league honors in the South Central Conference, a league that has become synonymous with excellent baseball. A 6-4, 180-pound senior, Shelby "loves the game of baseball and improved each year that he played," according to Romulus Coach Dennis Stoh.

Shelby hit .300 or better for the past two years and batted .353 in his final prep campaign. He also collected two HRs and 21 RBIs and is looking to continue playing on the college level next year.

MCLEOD, hurting with an injury, managed to hit .334 for the Chiefs at New Boston Huron. The 5-8, 165-pound senior is a "gutty player" who was the team leader.

"McLeod is a tough competitor who doesn't like to lose," said Huron Coach Bill Spiecker. "He's one of the reasons why we stayed in most of our games this year."

BITNER has impeccable credentials. His .342 batting average, plus 23 RBIs and 25 runs scored convinced Wolverine 'A' Conference coaches that his bat is a must on the all-league team. Bitner also belted three home runs and four doubles.

"It's my opinion that Jerry is probably the best defensive first baseman in the area," said Bertz. "He's unequalled with the glove."

STOKES, a 5-11, 175-pound senior, laced 56 hits in 77 at-bats which included a homer, four triples and a pair of doubles in a .458 season. He also finished three years on varsity and was awarded a berth on the all-Suburban Athletic Conference team.

"Stokes has tremendous athletic ability and potential," said Inkster Coach Jerome Orr, who finished his rookie year as coach. "We had a lot of rebuilding to do, but with Stokes in the lineup, it was made a bit easier."

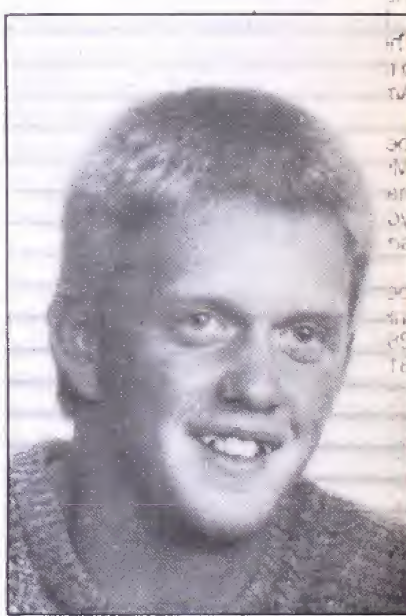

SACCO, a junior who checks in at 6-0 and 210 pounds, is considered one of the Tigers best hitters. He belted the ball around the field at a better than .300 clip, while leading the team in RBIs with 24. He also had five HRs, three triples, and five doubles. Vince, a standout in football as well, also earned

Bertz coach of the year

It took Coach John Bertz four seasons to turn Belleville High's baseball program around.

Bertz guided the Tigers to a record-setting 21-5 won-lost season and their first Wolverine 'A' Conference baseball championship. The Tigers fought their way into the Class A district championships before losing a cliffhanger, 12-11, in extra innings to Milford.

Typhoons soccer team posts undefeated year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

What a difference a year makes.

Last year residents of Western Wayne County joined the nation in prayers for rains; this year, the rains don't seem to want to stop.

And last year, the Typhoons made their presence felt on the soccer field; this year coaches Dale Travis and Rick Viers fielded an undefeated team and won the league championship.

If you discount the Typhoons' two ties, the Van Buren kickers had an enviable 17-0 record. Competing in a select division for league play and playing tough tournaments in Midland, Canton Township and Findlay, the local kickers came away with an untarnished record.

"Our coaching staff is very proud of these boys and their parents for the dedication and support they have displayed throughout the year."

"We would also like to thank the business community for its support and sponsorships," Travis stated.

The Typhoons came up with a strong mid-field defense that enabled the team to allow only 10 goals for the entire season and only one goal in the last 10 outings while they scored 59.

The Typhoons placed first in the Western Suburban Soccer League and will be competing in the fall as an Under 11 premier club.

all-conference accolades.

"Sacco, despite a badly bruised hand, had the 'hot hand' in the closing weeks of the season," Bertz noted. "I consider him one of our best hitters. He has great potential and, with a year of eligibility remaining, he should be even greater a year from now."

FEIST rounded out his second year on the varsity with an outstanding .383 batting average. He also had 18 RBIs, and was a sure glove at second base. A natural leader, Feist managed to score 19 times and was one of the instrumental players in the drive for the championship.

"You can't say enough about this player," Bertz commented. "When you needed that clutch hit or if his teammates needed some encouragement, Feist was always there to provide it."

It's 'show time' for Romulus softball title hopefuls

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It was show time in the Romulus Women's Softball League and title-hopeful Toni's needed a victory over Walter's to remain in the chase for the divisional championship.

With undefeated Brendco's leading the pack, second-place Toni's could ill-afford a third setback and realistically hope to catch the frontrunner.

Toni's showed that they are a worthy contender as they struck for six runs in the top of the fifth and went on to chalk up its seventh win, 8-4, in nine starts at archrival Walter's expense. The loss dropped Walter's into a two-way tie for third place with Village Ford, also 6-3 on the season. Toni's entered the week with a 7-2 record.

Erika Ruff led the assault on losing pitcher Vicki Whaley as she drilled a homer, two singles and drove in three of the winner's eight runs. Teammates Kristy Gadonski and Shelly Igras had four and three hits, respectively while, Bridget Gapa, Jennifer Carbonaro, and Gdowski check in with two hits apiece.

For the losers, Taerica Harris had a triple and single for two of their eight hits. Nancy Wands and Whaley each had run-scoring singles.

Over in the Men's Monday/Wednesday evening division, Walter's maintained its slim one-game cushion over Rafter's I thanks to an 8-2 victory over Davis Autobody. The victory, Walter's ninth in 11 outings, kept the winners one game in front of Rafter's, which is sporting an 8-3 record. The loss dropped Davis Autobody into a three-way tie for third place with Rafter's II and Document Services. All have 7-3 records.

Jon Clark banged out a roundtripper and a double for Walter's who came up with a pair of runs in the first inning, added three more in the third and fourth innings. Ed Bines, who shared pitching chores with Ron Smith, collected three hits, including a double, while Mike Crawford laced a triple and Alex Page had two singles.

The Autobody assault was sparked by Stu Block and Lynn Wiltzie who each had two hits. Art Williamson drove in both of the loser's runs.

Smooth Characters survived a 23-hit attack by third-place Garner's Jewelry to win a close 14-13 decision. The victory also kept their record unblemished (5-0) and left them alone atop of the league, although Federal Mogul is close by at 4-0.

Garner's rallied for three runs in the sixth, then scored five in the top of the seventh to take a 13-12 lead only to see that margin erased by the Smooth

Characters, who came back with the tying and go-ahead runs in the last inning.

Melvin Allen and Gilbert Cox each homered for the winners.

Viking lineup next year, had a sterling season. He hit an incredible .425, collecting a pair of homers, three doubles and a triple en route to all-conference honors.

"When you look at our record, it isn't impressive," said Coach Jerome Orr, "however, no one can blame Tyrone. He gave you 100 percent all the time. He is the type of player a coach dreams about coaching."

JANACK, a senior centerfielder, has played varsity ball for the past two seasons. He chipped in a .314 batting average and scored 25 runs while accounting for 22 RBIs. He also clubbed three HRs, three triples and two doubles.

Defensively, Bertz considers Janack as the best. "He's the type of player you can build winning teams and traditions upon."

DEBOZY, one of two players who were picked from New Boston, is a 5-9, 160-pound senior outfielder who finished his third varsity season. He batted .339 for the Chiefs.

"Mike caught anything that was hit his way in the outfield," said Spiecker. "He's a true-blue outfielder who everyone respects. Players like Debozy and McLeod are helping turn the program around."

LABIAK, with a .373 batting average, was the second leading hitter in the Romulus lineup. Named to the all-SCC Conference team, Chris was the Eagles' leadoff batter, and despite that fact, he still pushed across 17 Romulus runs.

"He has excellent speed," said Stoh. "He's going to be missed next year."

SHUMAKE is another one of the Bulldogs' "quiet players" who made noise with his bat. Easily switched to the outfield from first base, Russ is a multi-talented player who put together a .360 batting average while batting in the number two or three spot all year.

A four-year letterwinner, Shumake also earned all-SAC recognition after a successful senior year.

Coach

1989 baseball campaign, The Associated Newspapers is honored to name John Bertz as its Coach of the Year in baseball.

It took three years to produce a winner for Bertz at Belleville. What was the difference in this team from its predecessors?

"The seniors," Bertz said. "It was the seniors. They decided at the beginning of the year that they were going to end their high school careers as winners. They provided the leadership and the spirit for this team to be winners."

Bertz's message was a simple one to his players. "Good things will happen to good people."

"That's been my philosophy," he said. "And I have tried to live by it. And it didn't hurt that these kids have an excellent attitude toward work and each other. When you have that kind of combination, inevitably you're going to have winners."

In the Class of 1989, Bertz also had an outstanding player in Kelley O'Neal, whose bat caught the eyes of the professional scouts. O'Neal, who drilled eight homers and was the team's MVP was also drafted by the Detroit Tigers in the ninth round. He is presently training and playing in Bristol, Virginia.

Bertz, 32, arrived on the local scene from Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard via Eastern Michigan University, where he earned a degree in liberal arts. He turned to coaching after he discovered most college coaches weren't interested in a 5-8, 160-pound catcher.

"I had a lot of enthusiasm and I guess I was aggressive enough," Bertz recalls, "however, I guess they figured I wouldn't hack it physically. It was then and there I decided I would use my talents in coaching."

Obviously, the Tigers of Belleville High, are glad that Bertz made that decision.

Homeward bound
Apartment manager helps seniors live locally

By DANIEL CALABRESE
ANP Staff Writer
For years, retirees have migrated to Florida and Arizona to escape the harsh Michigan winter, an option that also forces them to separate from their families.
But the manager of at least one local apartment complex is doing all she can to help seniors and retirees stay in Michigan.
Nora Hardin, the manager of Willow Creek Apartments, in Westland, has worked since 1975 to provide a living environment, filled with activities and fellowship.
"One of the most important things with this concept is that you're part of a community," Hardin said.
Hardin knows the problems seniors encounter when they move away. After working in Ann Arbor, first in student housing for the University of Michigan and later at an apartment complex, she spent six months in 1975 living in Orlando, Florida, where she thought she would ease into retirement.

Nora Hardin

But the world she saw for seniors there was not what she had hoped for.
"I saw nothing but old age, and people who were so unhappy," she said. "And no one was paying attention to them."
Hardin compared Florida to a place where Indians once sent their older relatives.
"It just looked like, well, gee, this must be the place where you go to die," she said.
To provide an alternative, Hardin accepted an offer to return to Michigan and manage Willow Creek. The apartment complex was established in 1969, but offered no special programs or activities.

Today, Willow Creek is a community where seniors live side-by-side with younger families. Out of 432 apartments, 275 are occupied by retirees, many of whom have lived there since Hardin arrived with her programs. The others include families with children, whom the seniors can adopt as part of the Willow Creek "Adopt a Grandchild" program, for seniors who have no grandchildren.
The apartment complex also includes a clubhouse where residents can meet.
"They can walk over to the clubhouse," she said. "They can be with friends and neighbors."
That kind of community atmosphere is necessary, Hardin said, because seniors expect more than the bare minimum when they choose a place to live.

Florist

The gardeners of Keller & Stein start from scratch. They mix their own soil on the premises and water everything by hand. Once the seeds are planted and watered and given the proper amount of light, it's time to stand back and pray, Wood said.
"This year, our Easter lilies were late," Wood said. "So, we had to force them to bloom. It's kind of nerve wracking hoping you time everything out right."

Wood credits their chief gardener with the timing which keeps the 45,000-square-foot facility alive with color.
Besides growing and selling bedding flowers, Keller & Stein designers make cut-flower arrangements for weddings, birthdays, Valentine's Day - and just about any other occasion.
"We'll do anything you want with flowers," Keller said.
Eight full-time designers create floral arrangements for Keller & Stein. The florist supplies six area hospital gift shops with arrangements every day. Keller & Stein is also the official florist of the Detroit Tigers.

"Whenever they need to send flowers to someone, they call us," Wood said.
All of this hard work has earned Keller & Stein the distinction of being named among the top 100 FTD florists in the nation.
"I think the greatest thing about Keller & Stein is that we know our customers," Wood said. "Some of them have been coming around for years."

major surge in the local housing market.
"It's the lowest we've seen in a long time," McCormick said.

Lenders are now offering fixed rates at 10 percent on a 30-year mortgage, less on adjustable-rate mortgages.
Home sales throughout the state continue to show a slight increase from 1988 rates but a slight decline in sales compared to earlier in the year, according to statistics from the Michigan Multiple Listing Service, Inc.

"As soon as word gets out about the interest rates, I think that will change," McCormick said.
Average home prices in the state also showed a .02-percent increase from last year.

McDonald's wants you to be a Store Activities Representative

A Store Activities Representative at McDonald's is that person who makes our restaurant a warm, fun place to visit.

We're looking for an individual who's friendly, outgoing, enthusiastic, and most importantly, one who likes people.

As a Store Activities Representative, you'll be involved in all our in-store activities - such as birthday parties and store tours. You will spend most of your time in the restaurant's dining room insuring that each of our customer's visits to McDonald's is a friendly experience.

This position requires no prior experience; we will train you! If you would like to become a McDonald's Store Activities Representative, please apply in person between 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. at RoLiSha, Inc., 355 N. Canton Center Rd., Canton.
